LATIN BOOKLIST

This booklist has been prepared by a Consultative Committee in Classics and by the Curriculum Division of the Department of Education. It is hoped that it will help teachers select suitable books for enriching the Latin program in all grades.

Needless to say the list is not exhaustive and there are many very good books which are not mentioned. One of the principal reasons for many of the better known books being left off is the fact that many of them are out of print.

The prices which are given were correct as this list went to print, but they should be interpreted as a general guide only. Discounts sometimes apply and many book prices change on short notice.

A list of Canadian agents is given at the end.

It is hoped that this list can be kept up to date and comments and suggestions are invited for any future editions which may be produced.

REFERENCE BOOKS

Latin Dictionaries

Lewis, C. T. and Short, C., A Latin Dictionary, Oxford University Press, $14.40
This dictionary is a standard, large, full Latin dictionary. In addition to word meanings, there is a full discussion of the various uses of each word with a large number of examples. A most useful reference work that should be available to all teachers of senior Latin. Latin - English only.

Lewis, C. T., A Latin Dictionary for Schools, Oxford University Press, $8.50
A shorter version of the above. It covers all the authors read in schools, but has fewer examples and a less detailed discussion of the various points. Latin - English only.

Handford, S. A., ed., Langenscheidt's Pocket Latin Dictionary, Langenscheidt's, $2.50
This smaller dictionary is probably the best of the many small dictionaries that are available. Its meanings are accurate and it has been revised recently. Latin - English only.

Classical Dictionaries

Avery, C. B., ed., New Century Classical Handbook, Appleton-Century-Crofts, $15.75
Perhaps not as scholarly as the better known Oxford Classical Dictionary, but it often gives human interest details lacking in the other. This, and the fact that it has some illustrations, suggest that it might be a wise choice for schools.

Cary, M., et al., Oxford Classical Dictionary, Oxford University Press, $12.50
A most useful reference work which covers biography, literature, geography and bibliographical information. The book has a scholarly tone, although many of the articles would be well within the grasp of high school students. No illustrations.

Harvey, P., ed., Oxford Companion to Classical Literature, Oxford University Press, $3.95
Good for historical, political, social, and religious background. Accounts of authors and their works. As the title suggests, this book is of particular value in the reading of the Latin authors.

Warrington, J., Everyman's Classical Dictionary, Dent, $4.50
Probably the best of the smaller classical dictionaries. Useful for students to consult. Recently revised.

Grammars

Allen, J. H., and Greenough, J.B., New Latin Grammar, Ginn, $6.00
A very good reference book for the senior teacher. A standard work.

Woodcock, E. C., A New Latin Syntax, Methuen, $7.70
A book with a new approach to Latin Syntax. It provides a reasoned approach to the subject, rather than a series of rules.

Geography

Bunbury, E. H., A History of Ancient Geography, 2 vols., Dover, $7.20 each
A highly detailed account of the development of geography from Homer through to the later Roman period. A comprehensive reference work.

van der Heyden, A. A. M. and Scullard, H. H., Atlas of the Classical World, Nelson, $16.00
This book is far more than a collection of maps. It has a very fine series of drawings, maps and photographs explained by the text. It covers all areas of the Classical world.

Composition

Paterson, J., and MacNaughton, E., The Approach to Latin Writing, Oliver and Boyd, $1.65
Teachers may find this text a useful source of further explanations and examples of senior composition work.

Colebourn, R., Mentor, Methuen, English edn. $1.15, French edn. $1.95
This composition text, which was written to accompany the reader Civis Romanus, is available in both English and French editions. It might prove to be a useful source of material for Latin exercises.

Spoken Latin

Allen, W. S., Vox Latina, The Pronunciation of Classical Latin, Cambridge University Press, $3.85
A new book which should be of great assistance to all teachers.

Latin Verse

Cooper, C. G., An Introduction to the Latin Hexameter, Macmillan, $1.45
A clear, concise discussion of the subject. This book would be invaluable to a teacher wanting to brush up his knowledge of scansion and the way that Latin verse should be read.

Raven, D. S., Latin Metre; an Introduction, Faber, $8.15
A detailed account of the subject. It goes beyond the needs of a high school student, but would be a valuable book for a teacher who wants to know something of the details of Latin metre.

LATIN READERS

The first eight books in the following list have been examined by a committee of practising teachers. The comments which follow each book are the result of a careful analysis of the contents. Teachers who are able to read beyond the textbook with their classes would do well to consider one of these books.

Cobban, J. M. and Colebourn, R., Civis Romanus, Methuen, $1.10
This book covers a variety of topics in six divisions: (I) Legends of Early Rome; (II) The Roman Citizen; (III) The Roman Boy; (IV) Caesar and Augustus; (V) The Empire and Britain; (VI) Life During the Empire. The content is interesting and varied. The grammar points of Grades 10 and 11 are introduced systematically over the first five divisions. The subjunctive is introduced in division VI. It has excellent application through Grades 10 and 11 at every stage and is one of the best books available at the moment. It is available in both French and English editions.

Croft, A. M., Fabulae Antiquae, Geo. Bell, 75¢
This book restricts its content to Mythology, which limits its appeal. However, it maintains a level of sophistication which should appeal to 15-16 year-olds. The grammar is consistently simple throughout; subjunctives are not used, but the vocabulary range is wide. This book is well within the level of late Grade 10, and Grade 11.

Milne, J. M., Easy Latin Readings, Harrap, 55¢
The first fifteen pages tell stories with numbered sentences. The topics are largely historical, and, therefore, military, duplicating much material already found in the reading lessons of grammar texts. The subjunctive appears fairly early. This reader has some application for late Grade 11. It is mature, displays good Latin, and could be a useful source of sight selections, especially in Grade 12.

Morris, Sidney, Fons Perennis, Harrap, $1.80
This book is an anthology of medieval Latin. Parts I and II are intended for junior and middle school. Part III is intended for advanced students. Part I consists of simplified passages arranged more or less in the order of difficulty, with Grade 11 grammar. In Part II most subjunctive usages are met and the book would be suitable for Grade 12. The material is varied and of great interest. It would be a great revelation to students who have no idea that such material exists. The word order in the early passages is nearer to the English word order than is usual in classical Latin. Vocabulary and constructions too are closer to English usage. Translation is therefore easier. Some passages could be managed after Easter in Grade 11 but others are too difficult for Grade 12. There is no master vocabulary so that much help would be necessary. Used too widely it might accustom students to non-classical usage. A judicious use, however, could result in a stimulating and fascinating experience for students in late Grade 11.

Ritchie, F., Fabulae Faciles, Longmans, $1.55
The content of this reader deals with Mythology in a mature way. It gets into Grade 11 material quickly and subjunctives appear on page 20. It is well printed and illustrated. Most of the book is suitable for late Grade 11 and early Grade 12, from the point of view of grammar. Yet, its story material is probably less attractive for older students.

Robinson, C. E. and Hunter, P. G., Roma, Cambridge University Press, $1.35
The book is designed to introduce young students to the work of Latin authors and the main outline of Roman History.

Some passages are adapted from Livy, Pliny and Tacitus. The vocabulary is given at the foot of the page, as well as in the general vocabulary. The grammar becomes fairly involved after about ten pages, when the subjunctive is introduced. After a few pages, this book could not be read with any ease until after Easter, Grade 11. In the final term of Grade 11, interesting material can be selected.

Spencer, J. G., Scalae Primae, Bell, 65¢
Part I contains passages with numbered sentences. All tenses of the indicative, active and passive are used throughout, and the grammar is simple. The content is, in general, early Roman History with some Greek History as well. Part II contains fables, with some few additional anecdotes. No subjunctives are used in Parts I or II. Part III contains interesting anecdotes, at random, with the introduction of easy subjunctives. The book has some application in Grade 10 (Part I), and much more in Grade 11 (Part II). Because of its over-all content and level of difficulty, this book would be a wise choice.

Vincent, C. J., A First Latin Reader, Oxford University Press, $1.00
The content deals with the rise of Rome, and the subsequent conquest of Britain, to the end of the Roman occupation. Generous and informative introductions precede most of the selections. These are valuable as a source of knowledge in developing the story of Rome. The grammar is consistently simple. Its content is mainly military and elementary and the book would therefore not be suitable beyond the first term of Grade 11.

* * * * *

Balme, M. G. and Warman, M. S., Aestimanda, Oxford University Press, $1.90
This reader includes a number of passages of Latin and Greek, followed by some suggestions for discussing the literary aspects of the selections. Comparatively few of the actual passages would be of use in the current course but the book contains many ideas which could be applied well in the teaching of Latin literature in Grades 12 and 13.

Drake, Gertrude, Latin Readings and More Latin Readings, Scott, Foresman, $2.00 each These intermediate rapid readers have interlinear notes and vocabulary and are designed to enable a student to read a large amount of Latin. Although their application to the present course is limited, the books might have some use especially for good students in the second half of Grade 11, or in Grade 12.

Young, B. W. M., Via Vertendi, Longmans, $1.25
This book presents one of the possible approaches to sight translation. Short notes on various problems of Latin translation are presented. Each note is followed by three sight passages which give the student practice in the new problem. Some of the extracts are suitable for use in Grades 12 and 13, although the vocabulary used is quite wide.

In a lighter vein

The following books are not intended to provide serious classroom material for the present course, but they may appeal to both teachers and students and expose students to some extra Latin in a painless way.

Caroll, L., Alicia in Terra Mirabili, translated by E. C. Carruthers, Macmillan, $3.25
This book has more difficult Latin than the books which follow. It is an entertaining translation which should be within the capacities of a bright Grade 12 student. This edition has the original drawings.

Hadas, Elizabeth, tr., Ferdinandus Taurus, David McKay, $3.35
An amusing, well-illustrated telling of the old familiar story.

Potter, Beatrix, Fabula Petro Cuniculo and Fabula De Jemima Anate-Aquatica, Warne, $1.25
Those who met Peter Rabbit and the other Beatrix Potter animals as children may be amused by the Latin version.

Watson, C. P., Fabulae Aesopi, Faber, $1.35
An attractive selection of thirty fables which might be useful for providing occasional variety. Would probably be of most use at the Grade 11 level.

HISTORICAL BACKGROUND

Abbott, F. F., Roman Politics, Cooper Square, $3.75
An interesting discussion of some of the problems of Roman politics. Makes comparison between modern and ancient politics. One of the series "Our Debt to Greece and Rome".

Bailey, C., ed., The Legacy of Rome, Oxford University Press, $5.00
This book, which perhaps deserves a category of its own, deals with the way in which the Roman world has influenced our own. It contains essays by various noted authorities on a wide variety of topics. This book is extremely good background reading for the teacher of Latin. Illustrated.

Barrow, R. H., The Romans, Penguin, 85¢
An informative introduction to the Romans, their way of life, and their civilization.

Boak, A. E. R., History of Rome to 565 A.D., Collier-Macmillan, $10.00
A fine reference book for the teacher and senior student; probably the most readable of the standard Roman histories.

Burn, A. R., Agricola and Roman Britain, English University Press, $2.75
Very useful for background to the reading of Caesar's account of the invasions. Most of the book concerns the later period but it has a pleasant style that will appeal to many students.

Corney, L., The Story of Rome, Arnold, $2.75
Although written for the younger student this book tells in a relatively short space the history of Rome from beginning to end.

Cottrell, Leonard, The Great Invasion, Evans, $6.60, Pan Books, 65¢
An absorbing account of Caesar's invasion informally told.

Cottrell, Leonard, Enemy of Rome, Evans, $6.60, Pan Books, 65¢
This book was written as a result of a trip along Hannibal's path from New Carthage to Italy. It discusses the problems that beset Hannibal and the various problems of our knowledge of the route Hannibal took. A most valuable book to use with the reading of Livy.

Durant, Will, Caesar and Christ, Simon and Schuster, $12.50
This book, volume III in the "History of Civilization" series, is an entertaining and informative account of Roman history. It is immensely readable and contains a great number of human interest details often omitted from more scholarly works.

Foster, Genevieve, Augustus Caesar's World, Scribners, $7.50; library edn., $4.75
An attractively produced book which presents a picture of the world in the reign of Augustus.

Glover, T. R., The Ancient World, Penguin, $1.25
A good introduction to the Greeks and Romans which succeeds in communicating the author's enthusiasm. It gives a good insight into the workings of the Greek and Roman mind.

Mellersh, H. E. L., Carthage and Imperial Rome, Weidenfeld and Nicolson, $2.95 each
These two books in the "Young Historian" series are useful for student reference. The book on Carthage is a concise readable account which provides good background material for the reading of Livy in Grade 12 and for the study of Carthage generally. The book on Imperial Rome concentrates on the first century of the empire, though the later period does receive some attention. Starting, as it does, with the death of Caesar the book concentrates on a period which is often neglected in favour of the republican era.

Mills, Dorothy, The Book of the Ancient Romans, Putnam's, $4.50
A general history of Rome from the founding of the city to the year of its fall. Contains some useful material on the early period. A good book for the high school level.

Picon, G., Carthage, Elek Books, $11.00
A fairly detailed account of the Carthaginian civilization. The book is illustrated with many fine photographs of works of art and of archaeological sites. It does not contain a great deal of material on Hannibal and the Punic Wars, but provides interesting reading on the general background of Rome's most formidable enemy.

Richmond, I. A., Roman Britain, Penguin, 85¢
A sound, detailed discussion of the history of Britain during the Roman period by one of the foremost scholars in the field.

Rostovtzeff, M., Rome, Oxford University Press, Galaxy Book, $2.65
A reprinting of an older history of Rome that is still a valuable reference work.

Scramuzza, V. M. and McKendrick, P. L., The Ancient World, Holt, Rinehart & Winston, $10.45
This book is a college history textbook, but its readable style and good illustrations make it a good reference book.

Scullard, H. H., From the Gracchi to Nero, Methuen, $6.50; paperback, $3.50
A fine readable history which discusses in detail the period of the fall of the republic and the transition to the empire. Useful for reference by a teacher or a senior student.

Stobart, J. C., The Grandeur that was Rome, Hawthorn Books, $10.25
A new edition of an old favourite that is a pleasure to read. It contains many good photographs which enliven the text.

Unstead, R. J., Looking at Ancient History, Black, $2.10
This book, which is designed for the younger reader, might serve a useful purpose in compressing the entire spectrum of ancient history into a small space, thus enabling a student to survey the whole picture more readily than is possible with a more detailed book. Contains some good illustrations.

Workman, B. K., They Saw it Happen in Classical Times, Basil Blackwell, $6.00
Entertaining choice of eyewitness accounts of events in the Greek and Roman periods.

ROMAN LITERATURE

General

Ehrenberg, V. and Jones, A. H. M., Documents Illustrating the Reigns of Augustus and Tiberius, Oxford University Press, $4.25
A book for the scholar who wants to enrich his classes with the reading of inscriptions. Contains a great variety and a number are quite easy to translate. Latin and Greek text, no translation.

Grant, M., Roman Literature, Penguin, $1.35
A sound introduction.

Hamilton, Edith, The Roman Way, Norton, $5.75; paperback, $1.60; Mentor, 75¢
Excellent chapters that bring to life Caesar, Cicero, Catullus, Horace and Vergil by placing them against the background of their writings and the Rome in which they lived.

Harrison, G. B., Julius Caesar in Shakespeare, Shaw and the Ancients, Harcourt, Brace and World, $2.15
In addition to the text of the Shakespeare and Shaw plays, the author gives extracts from the works of Plutarch (in the translation which Shakespeare himself used), Cicero, Suetonius and Appian, as well as some of Caesar's own writing. These extracts shed considerable light on Caesar as various people saw him. Useful background material.

Lind, R., ed., Latin Poetry in Verse Translation, Houghton Mifflin, $4.20; paperback, $1.60
Probably the best collection of Latin Verse in translation in print today. Contains all the common poems of Catullus and Horace and a wide selection of poems and poetry from all periods of Latin literature.

Wilkinson, L. P., Golden Latin Artistry, Cambridge University Press, $9.55
A readable, detailed discussion of the technical aspects of Latin poetry and prose. It covers the sounds, rhythms, and structure of the language and would be invaluable to the teacher and senior student in dealing with the appreciation of Latin at the Grade 13 level.

Loeb Classical Library

As most teachers of Latin will know, all the authors read in high school as well as most other classical writers appear in the Loeb Library. These useful reference books present the Latin on the left hand page with a parallel English translation opposite. They may be obtained for all the authors read in school from Harvard University Press at $4.95.

Catullus

Fordyce, C. J., Catullus, a Commentary, Oxford University Press, $5.00
Latin text and notes on the poems. Probably the best of its kind. A most valuable work for teachers.

Copley, F. O., Complete Poetry of Catullus, University of Michigan Press, $5.50; paperback, $2.00
A witty verse translation. It is not always very close to the Latin words, but it succeeds in capturing some of the flavour and humour of the original. As this book contains all Catullus' poetry, some of which is not suitable for reading in school, some discretion in the use of the book is suggested.

Swanson, R. A., Odi et Amo, The Complete Poetry of Catullus, Liberal Arts, $1.00
A readable, useful verse translation which is closer to the Latin than the above. As this book too contains all the poems, similar caution should be used.

Horace

Fraenkel, E., Horace, Oxford University Press, $10.00
A reference work for the teacher. This is a scholar's book which demands a considerable amount from the reader but which is particularly good on difficult poems.

Commager, Steele, The Odes of Horace, Yale University Press, $8.50
A more readable, less formidable book than the above. Contains some fine translations and displays a keen sensitivity in the discussion of the different poems. Well indexed.

Dunsany, Lord, and Oakley, M., The Works of Horace, Dent, $3.75
Good verse translation of Horace.

Ovid

Wilkinson, L. P., Ovid Recalled, Cambridge University Press, $8.15
This is the finest work on Ovid available at the moment. The author discusses his subject with appreciation and sensitivity. A number of passages are included in Latin, and these are nearly always accompanied by a translation. For those who might prefer a short version, there is available Ovid Surveyed, from the same publisher at $2.45. It is an abridgement of the larger text which contains much of the same material but with fewer translations.

Humphries, R., The Metamorphoses of Ovid, Indiana University Press, Midland Books, $1.45
One of the most readable verse translations, which captures something of the charm of the original.

Innes, M., The Metamorphoses of Ovid, Penguin, $1.65
A good, accurate prose translation.

Virgil

Austin, R. G., Aeneid Book II, a Commentary, Oxford University Press, $4.25

Austin, R. G., Aeneid Book IV, $2.50

Fletcher, M., Aeneid Book VI, $1.95

Williams, R. D., Aeneid Book III, $3.50

Williams, R. D., Aeneid Book V, $3.25

The five books mentioned above are the first books in the new Oxford series on Virgil. They would be most useful in the teaching of Virgil and represent the finest full commentary available today. Books II and IV are particularly worth while.

Bowra, C. M., Virgil to Milton, Macmillan, $4.25
A serious scholarly work which traces the epic tradition from Rome to England. A useful work for reference, particularly by the teacher who has a good background in English literature.

Otis, Brooks, Virgil, a Study in Civilized Poetry, Oxford University Press, $7.50
One of the best discussions of Virgil as a whole. It is technical and deep but readable. A valuable reference book for teachers. May be consulted by students with some teacher direction.

Humphries, R., The Aeneid, Scribners, cloth, $5.00; paperback, $2.10
A very good modern verse translation. Not as close to the Latin as some translations, but very readable.

Lewis, C. D., The Aeneid, Doubleday Anchor, $1.10
Another fine modern translation in verse. Rather closer to the Latin. This translation was written to be read aloud.

Knight, W. J. F., The Aeneid, Penguin, 85¢
An accurate prose translation that reads well.

Caesar

Handford, S. A., Caesar's Gallic War, Penguin, 85¢
A fine accurate translation that is faithful to the Latin and retains the pace and interest of the original.

Cicero

Clarke, M. L., Rhetoric at Rome, Cohen and West, $3.80
A technical book which devotes a great deal of attention to Cicero. This is one of the few books that has a great deal to say about Cicero the orator as opposed to Cicero the historical figure. It is complicated in spots but useful for dealing with Cicero's style.

Cowell, F. R., Cicero and the Roman Republic, Penguin, $1.85
An excellent reference book on the history of the republic in general and the age of Cicero in particular.

Haskell, H. J., This was Cicero, Premier Books, 75¢
A readable and informative account of the many aspects of Cicero. Good for background reading in Grade 13.

Rolfe, J. C., Cicero and His Influence, Cooper Square, $3.75
An outline of Cicero's career and a discussion of his influence on later ages. One of the series "Our Debt to Greece and Rome".

Livy

Walsh, P. G., Livy - His Historical Aims and Methods, Cambridge University Press, $7.65
The standard work on Livy. Suitable for the teacher who wants to expand his knowledge of this phase of the Grade 12 work.

LANGUAGE AND WORD STUDY

Nybakken, O. E., Greek and Latin in Scientific Terminology, Iowa State University Press, $6.75
A highly technical discussion of one definite use of Latin and Greek in the modern world. May be useful for teachers and students for reference.

Pax, Joseph M., Word Mastery, Scott, Foresman, $1.40
This book, which is arranged as a workbook, contains some useful material to supplement word study assignments in the textbooks. Teachers are no doubt aware of the dangers of excessive use of a workbook and would probably not want to spend too great an amount of time on word study in any case, but this book would be a useful source of extra material if the teacher felt the need of it.

Wedeck, H. E., Short Dictionary of Classical Word Origins, Philosophical Library Inc., $3.75
A dictionary of words, phrases and allusions that stem from classical sources. Its handy size makes it good for student reference.

ROMAN LIFE

General

Carcopino, J., Daily Life in Ancient Rome, Penguin, $2.95
The work of a scholar who combines careful research and study with humour. This book will hold the interest of both teacher and student.

Cowell, F. R., Everyday Life in Ancient Rome, Batsford, $4.60
An attractive, informative book, illustrated with photographs and line drawings.

Davis, W. S., A Day in Old Rome, Allyn & Bacon, $6.00
An older book which has stood the test of time well. A fine source of information about Roman daily life.

Fowler, W. W., Social Life at Rome in the Age of Cicero, Macmillan $5.00
An older, but still useful book.

Herget, H. M., Everyday Life in Ancient Times, National Geographic Society, $6.00
An attractive, well-known book which deals with the civilizations of Mesopotamia, Egypt, Greece and Rome. It presents a series of articles and photographs as well as the central feature of the book, a series of vivid paintings of everyday scenes reconstructed carefully to produce a feeling of authenticity.

Johnston, Mary, Roman Life, Scott, Foresman, $9.45
A very good book. It covers the major fields of everyday life in Rome in a readable text and a fine series of black and white photographs. It does not go into great depth in any field, but it serves as a splendid beginning.

Kennedy, E. C., and White, G. W., S.P.Q.R., Macmillan, $1.70
A small book designed for the beginner in Latin. It presents an outline history of Rome and its mythology as well as a vivid discussion of life in Rome in the early empire through the eyes of a young Roman boy.

Treble, H. A., and King, H. M., Everyday Life in Rome, Oxford Clarendon Press, $1.50
A small, well-known book. Fewer illustrations than some of the more modern books. Suitable for lower grades.

Specific Areas

Casson, L., The Ancient Mariners, Collier-Macmillan, $8.35
A discussion of the problems and achievements of sailors in the ancient period.

de Camp, L., The Ancient Engineers, Doubleday, $5.95
An absorbing account of the development of engineering from the time of the Egyptians to the medieval period.

Gardiner, E. N., Athletics of the Ancient World, Oxford University Press, $7.50

Harris, H. A., Greek Athletes and Athletics, Hutchinson, $8.50
The above two books deal mainly with the Greek world as the Romans did not have a great deal of athletic sport in the sense that the Greeks and we do. The books are included as the field is one which often appeals to boys who want to study some aspect of the ancient world. Of the two books the one by Harris is the more up to date.

McCartney, R. S., Warfare by Land and Sea, Cooper Square, $3.65
In "Our Debt to Greece and Rome" series.

MYTHOLOGY

Students of Latin have usually had an introduction to Mythology in their English Literature classes and reference may be made to the texts in use in Grade 9 of each individual school. The following books may be useful for reference.

Hamilton, Edith, Mythology, Mentor, 75¢
A very good, sound, adult approach to the subject.

Kirkwood, G. M., A Short Guide to Classical Mythology, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, $1.45
A small, compact reference work which would be useful in reading Latin authors.

ARCHAEOLOGY

Boardman, J., Greeks Overseas, Penguin, $1.35
A lively account of the activities of Greeks in various areas, mostly within the boundaries of the Roman Empire. The book gives some insight into the methods of the modern archaeologist.

Brieger, P. H., Vickers, G. S., and Winter, F. S., Art and Man, Book I Ancient and Medieval, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, $3.75

A useful survey of art from prehistory to the medieval period. Sections on Greece and Rome are concise and readable. Many illustrations, mainly in black and white but with several good colour plates. This is also a text for Grade 11 art.

Brion, M., Pompeii and Herculaneum, Elek Books, $18.50
A most comprehensive discussion of the excavations and finds in these two towns. The illustrations are particularly good though while the text is clear, parts of it are probably too detailed for students.

Ceram, C. W., Gods, Graves and Scholars, Knopf, $8.75
An excellent book which should arouse the interest of students. The account of the discovery and excavation of Troy is particularly good.

Ceram, C. W., The March of Archaeology, Knopf, $18.50
The same area is covered as in the above, but with illustrations and in greater depth. The book covers excavations in Asia, Africa, Europe and America.

Cottrell, L., Lost Cities, Pan Books, 85¢
A good introduction for the student. Written by an author with a fine knowledge of the Classics.

Curelly, C. T., I Brought the Ages Home, Ryerson, $6.00
This autobiography by the man who guided the Royal Ontario Museum through its important early years will be of special interest to students who have visited the museum. It is very readable and gives some idea of the problems faced by a museum curator on his trips around the world.

Grant, Michael, ed., The Birth of Western Civilization, Greece and Rome, McGraw-Hill, $27.50
A magnificent volume of illustrations and essays about Greece and Rome. The illustrations are superb and are in both colour and black and white. The essays are scholarly but readable.

Hadas, Moses, Imperial Rome, Time-Life Books, $5.50
A very readable account of the Roman civilization. Very good illustrations with some fine examples of Roman painting.

Hall, Jennie, Buried Cities, Collier-Macmillan, trade binding, $3.65; library binding, $4.75
A good introduction to archaeology.

Hurlimann, Martin, Rome, Thames and Hudson, $6.50
A fine book of photographs of Rome by a very well known photographer. A book which would give students a very good idea of the appearance of Rome today.

Jashemski, W., Letters from Pompeii, Ginn, $3.00
A new, attractive book written with imagination. It is based on the archaeology of the city and would be particularly appealing to students of Grades 10 or 11.

Labande, Y. and Labande, E. R., Rome, Nicholas Kaye, $9.50
Rome of all ages. Black and white illustrations with good descriptive text.

McKendrick, Paul, The Mute Stones Speak, St. Martin's Press, $8.50
One of the finest accounts of what archaeologists are attempting to do today. A good readable book that would appeal to students.

Morton, H. V., A Traveller in Rome, Methuen, $6.50
One of a well-known series. A good readable book which mentions many interesting little known anecdotes of Classical Rome.

Silverberg, R., Lost Cities and Vanished Civilizations, Bantam, 50¢
A useful account of Pompeii, Troy and other sites.

Sutherland, R. H. V., Milne, T. G., Thompson, A., Coin Collecting, Oxford University Press, $3.50
A good introduction to numismatics. Covers a wide range of topics and should be of interest to students. Concentrates on the scientific archaeological approach, rather than the sensational. A good section on Roman coins.

White, A. T., Lost Worlds: The Romance of Archaeology, Random House, $5.00
The achievements of archaeologists on four continents are imaginatively discussed. The narrative has a sense of adventure which communicates the author's enthusiasm very well.

HISTORICAL FICTION

There is a great number of books on classical themes available from various publishers. Those printed below are merely a small sampling of some of the better ones.

TEACHING AND EDUCATION

Highet, G., The Art of Teaching, Knopf, cloth, $6.50; paperback, $1.90
A sound approach to the subject written by a man with a deep attachment to the classics. A popular book which many people find helpful.

McKenna, Sister M. B., Successful Devices in Teaching Latin, J. Weston Walsh, Box 1075, Portland, Maine

Marrou, H. I., A History of Education in Antiquity, Mentor, 95¢
A well-known study of the subject. Goes into considerable detail, covering a wide area from Homer, through Plato and Rome to the monastic schools of the Middle Ages.

Sweet, J. W., Latin Workshops, University of Michigan Press
Grammar taught by the structural method; useful for the teacher wishing to acquire a facility in asking comprehension questions in Latin.

Incorporated Association of Assistant Masters in Secondary Schools, The Teaching of Classics, Cambridge University Press, $3.00
A sound discussion of problems and methods in the teaching of the Classics. Although the book is English it has a good deal to offer the Canadian teacher as well.

Ministry of Education Pamphlet No. 37: Suggestions for the Teaching of Classics, H.M.S.O., York House, Kingsway, London W.C.2, Five shillings
Some of the material and discussion centres around the English school organization, but there is a great deal of useful help as well.

Classical Service Bureau, 61 Fairside Avenue, Toronto
Teachers should not overlook the many publications of this most useful service. Established about fifteen years ago, it has provided teachers with valuable, practical help on a great variety of classical subjects. Catalogue is available on request.

TEXTBOOKS

There are many Latin textbooks which, while not authorized for use in Ontario, provide useful supplementary material. The following are just a few of the many new books available.

Hines, T., and Welsh, E. J., Our Latin Heritage, 2 vols., Harcourt, Brace & World, Vol. 1, cloth, $5.60; paper, $3.90; Vol. 2, cloth, $5.60
A new attractive textbook which presents the reading approach. Available also is a teacher's handbook for the text which has some good ideas about method.

Horn, A., Gummere, J. F., and Forbes, M. M., Using Latin, 2 vols., Scott, Foresman, Vol. 1, $4.80; Vol. 2, $5.10
Also a new book. It contains much reading material and a large number of good illustrations. Teacher's handbook available also.

Thompson, G. S., and Craddock, C. H., Latin - a Four-Year Course, Blackie, Book 1, $1.85; Book 2, $2.00; Book 3, $2.35; Book 4, $2.75
This series of books shows the direction which has been taken recently in England. More reading material has been used than was frequently the case in former times, and yet a considerable amount of composition has been retained.

Ullman, B. L., Henderson, C., and Henry, N. E., Latin for Americans, 3 vols., Collier-Macmillan, Vol. 1, $5.30; Vol. 2, $5.75; Vol. 3, $6.40
A new edition of an older text.

PERIODICALS

The Phoenix. This is the journal of the Classical Association of Canada and as such it is the professional journal of Classicists in this country. It covers a wide variety of topics and although many of the articles are directed at the university level, many items are of interest to high school teachers as well. Membership in the Classical Association of Canada also includes a subscription to Classical News and Views which contains items of more general interest. More information about both publications is available from Professor J. A. S. Evans, Secretary, Classical Association of Canada, McMaster University, Hamilton, Ontario.

Classical Journal. The journal of the Classical Association of the Middle West and South. Further information is available from Mr. Paul R. Murphy, Ohio University, Athens, Ohio.

Classical World. The journal of the Classical Association of the Atlantic States. Available from The Classical Association of the Atlantic States, Inc., Rutgers, The State University, Newark College of Arts and Science, 12 James St., Newark, N. J. 07102.

Classical Outlook. This journal, which is intended for the high school teacher is available from the American Classical League, Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. Much other material about the Classics is also available from the same source.

Didaskalos. A journal from England intended primarily for the teacher at the high school level. More information is available from the editor, Mr. J. E. Sharwood Smith, London University, Institute of Education, Mallet Street, London W.C. 1.

Greece and Rome. The journal of the Classical Association, published by the Oxford University Press. This magazine has produced some lively and stimulating articles.

Acta Diurna. A Latin newspaper which reports key events in Roman history as they might have been presented in Rome. Published by the Orbilian Society, c/o Centaur Books, Ltd., 284 High Street, Slough, Bucks., England.

Res Gestae. A single sheet news bulletin of current events told in Latin. Published by the Yale Book Company, 34 Butternut Street, Toronto, Ontario.
